The last line on this example is my problem in Chrome and IE: I want to highlight the 3 circles above in the red color. Thank you for you help in advance! P.S. I'm using angularjs with bootstrap in this example, but this is not the real code, just a demo. A: Well I fixed it. Instead of setting the div width, set the ul width and then use a custom css with background color and corners for the span of that div. Now it will work in all browsers (all the browsers I tested). "COOL" how do I add extra car drivers for my Toyota Camry or Ford Fusion? I have a 2007 Toyota Camry with 15k original miles on it. I would like to add a second driver, kind of like a "baby car" for me & my 6 yr old son. He will need to be in the front passenger seat at all times. He needs to be "protected" as he is driving, but may need his vehicle to move around. I would need to pay a per mile tax for him, but in all reality, for 2 hours of driving a day, it would only cost approx $40/year. I would like to ask on the Camry website. Am I able to pay for this add on? Will it
